Translation and Intercultural Studies eBooks

By popular demand we are delighted to introduce St Jerome Publishing to the dawsonera catalogue.

St Jerome is a small press based in Manchester specialising in translation studies and cross-cultural communication, committed to promoting high quality research and publication. While operating on a commercial basis, the first and foremost concern is to support the development of translation studies and other disciplines focusing on cross-cultural communication and allow the work of promising young scholars to reach the research community, unhampered by bureaucracy or academic politics.

St. Jerome Publishing launched its first publication, The Translator, in 1995, a refereed international journal with a highly distinguished Editorial Board. Since then, St. Jerome has published some of the highest quality academic monographs, textbooks and reference works in the field. The addition of their ebooks will be particularly welcomed by librarians in the Nordic countries who encouraged us to license this specific material to satisfy requests from their readers.

Mona Baker as Professor of Translation Studies at the University of Manchester is a recognised authority in her field and is also the co-founder and editorial director of St Jerome Publishing. She is co-Vice President of the International Association of Translation and Intercultural Studies (IATIS), establishing her credentials further and demonstrating the standard set by St Jerome Publishing.

Examples of ebooks now available on dawsonera include:

9781905763863 Western Translation Theory by Douglas Robinson
9781905763672 Style and Narrative in Translations by Hiroko Cockerill
9781905763702 A Critique of Politeness Theories by Gino Eelen

The addition of St Jerome ebooks expands the dawsonera catalogue of translation studies with significant collections already available from publishers John Benjamins and Rodopi.
